

Ms. Bedard's 3rd grade class

6/2/15

Once there was a cheetah named Steve. He lived with an elephant named Ms. Bedard. They lived in a big, multicolored mansion in Florida. Steve was a Lunch Man. He was an expert at making lunch.

One day, Ms. Bedard was trying to find something to cut her nails. She needed a pair of scissors. Ms. Bedard asked Steve to go to Jack's Barber shop to get her a pair of scissors. Ms. Bedard warned Steve, "On the way, make sure you don't go into Keagan's Chained Shoe shop.

It was a summer afternoon. Steve put on a t-shirt, some sneakers, jeans and a hat and said, Peace out!"

It was a foggy day and Steve was feeling dead, like he was about to pass out. Steve traveled for fifty miles, then he stopped because Keagan's Shoe shop was right in his way.

Suddenly, Steve smelled something so gross! It smelled like bird vomit. It was so gross, it made Steve run into the Chained Shoe shop and shut the door.

The moment Steve went into the Shoe shop, a backpack jumped on him. That was bad because the backpack had a T-Rex in it.

The T-Rex said, "I am going to eat you. I am going to boil you with carrots and carpet."

Steve said to the T-Rex, "I will give you a chocolate flavored people cupcake if you let me go."

The T-Rex said, "Fine, but you also have to buy me tickets to Dracula in Concert, because he is my favorite singer."

So Steve gave the T-Rex the cupcake and promised to send the tickets by mail.

It took ten hours for Steve to get to Jack's Barber shop. When he got there, Jack was giving a mohawk to Eden the Turtle. Steve paid ten dollars for the pair of scissors.

Steve moved quickly so it only took two hours to get back home.

When Steve got home, Ms. Bedard said, "Geez! that took a long time!"

"Well," said Steve, "I stopped off to get some pizza."

As Steve handed her the scissors, Ms. Bedard noticed the cupcake was missing. She asked, "Who ate the cupcake?"

So Steve finally told the truth. Ms. Bedard said, "Too bad for you. Those Dracula tickets cost $500 each. That's your whole allowance for a year. Then, she sat down to cut her nails.
